REGISTRARS
J. W. Parker, member of the Coffee County Board of Registrars, states that a number of persons have the idea that the Board is in session only at certain times before elections. He announces that the Board will meet in Elba July 6, 7, and 8, and at Enterprise July 8, 9, and 10.

Recently so much has been written about the modern day super market with its island displays, pre-packaged meat, drug shelves and growing tendency toward handling other lines of merchandise that the old country store has been forgotten. Pushed into the background by its big city brother, the country store to most people living in metropolitan areas holds a place in their minds like the horse and buggy. It is something that has faded from the Alabama scene.

Such is not the case, though, as the many crossroad stores in the state testify. In fact the present day retailer in rural communities offers a strange mixture of services supplied to the neighborhood through custom, and modern merchandising of the latest goods.

Still the center of community life, the country store has advanced with the times and holds an irreplaceable position in Alabama farm regions.

Typical of country stores in the state is one operated in New Hope community of Coffee County by James Wilson. Besides offering items priced

James Wilson, retired New Hope store operator, demonstrates the technique he has used in pulling teeth for his community the past 29 years. Note how Emil Johnson, who is pulling the tooth, grabs the base of the chair legs. That's the only anesthesia. The pulkins have a curved handle on one side that fits over the little finger of the man pulling the tooth in order to give more leverage. These pulkins date to Coffee County around 1823 and have been used by three generations of the Wilson family.

O. C. Smith reports that he has been having the time of his life trying to raise a pea patch. He said he planted peas three times this spring and summer and every time the sprouts would pull them up and destroy them before they attained any size.

Mr. Smith tried sprinkling with Derris, sulphur and lime to no avail. Finally, as a last resort, he decided to plant again and sprinkle the little peas with snuff. Not a sprout has touched. Mr. Smith said that at last he has found one thing snuff is good for.

Plan Adopted for Allotting Road Funds

A resolution to adopt a new formula for allotting road funds was adopted by the Coffee County Board of Commissioners Monday morning at their Enterprise meeting. The resolution offered by Buster Bowlen and seconded by Lee read:

"Be it resolved by the Court of County Commissioners as follows:

"That at the present time Coffee County is engaged in the construction and blacktopping of certain roads in Coffee County, Alabama, known as Farm-to-Market roads, and which program is scheduled to be completed in 1955.

"That after the completion of the present program that future improvements of roads, that is the construction and blacktopping of roads in the County known as the Farm-to-Market roads, be done on a percentage basis of miles of roads and bridges in each Commissioner's District, as equally as possible, such percentage to be determined by the Commissioners."

The court also requested Federal aid on the road running from Bellwood road at Coffee Dale County line, north approximately one mile. Also the road from intersection of Alabama 1 and City Street in Kinston, west.

Authorized or ordered:

Whitman to repair DW 10 tractor and 112 M for Grader. Bowden to repair D6 tractor, buy 15 grader blades and 70 feet of pipe.

Let for blacktopping road from New Brockton running south to Smith's Store, also to have same inspected and widened to 20 feet of black top.

Lee to buy 15,000 feet of lumber and Ziglar 44 feet of pipe.

wardly approximately one and one-half miles.

As has been the custom for some time, regular sessions of Commissioners Court will be held during July, August and September in Elba.

Crippled Children Fund Drive Starting

The annual campaign for funds for the Alabama Society for Crippled Children and Adults in Coffee County will start July 12.

In a recent issue of The Clipper, a news story was carried about Barney Simmons, the young boy who had both legs in a cast as the result of a gunshot wound. Barney is presently under the care of the Crippled Children's Society and will remain under their care until he has become proficient in the use of artificial limbs.

The Society will furnish the limbs and change them as Barney grows up.

Barney is only one of 230 cases on the register for Coffee County. The services of the Society range from speech deficiencies to multiple amputees and paraplegics, and such services cost money. There are no charges to the Society for professional services because such specialists as Dr. W. C. Hamon donate their time. Hospital days are billed at cost and there are no administration expenses.

The regular quota for Coffee County this year is $2,500. This will be used to maintain the regular treatment program. An additional $2,500 has been asked to go toward the building of a modern rehabilitation center to serve the children and adults from all of South Alabama.

This new center will provide physical, occupational and speech therapy for all types of disabled persons.

In the fiscal year 1953-54 the Crippled Children's Service paid out $3,617.68 direct, for children of Coffee County while the community donated $1,200. The year before $7,018.91 was spent on Coffee County children while only $1,600 was donated. For 1953 the Society spent $6,989.95 here and raised only about $1,300.

This service is extended to everyone in Alabama. Eric Paul is chairman of the fund drive and he is assisted by Lewey Stephens and Fred Clark.

Mrs. Mary Newton and son, Robert, left Elba Saturday evening going via New Orleans, Houston and out Highway 90 to El Paso, Texas to visit Mrs. Newton's son, Mrs. W. J. Blanch, and family at Organ, N. TORRID JUNE BREAKS RECORD

The torrid spell that has prevailed in this area for the past several weeks was climaxed on Monday when the sizzling temperature reached 104, which old-timers claim was the hottest day ever recorded in June so far as they can remember. Hot evenings and lack of breeze made several nights uncomfortable for sleeping.

Showers have visited various localities in the county during the past week but all threats of rain locally have vanished into thin air. Rain is badly needed in the immediate vicinity of Elba.

Company Poll Discloses Views Of TV Watchers

MINNEAPOLIS—What's wrong with television? Too many wild West dramas, wrestling and quiz programs, for one thing. And, for another, television is killing the art of conversation.

These were the findings of a Northwestern life insurance company's poll of its white collar video set owners. While objecting to the types of programs listed above, these viewers expressed more favorable opinions of variety shows and dramas.

Of those polled, 49 per cent have children. These parents complained that there is a large shortage of TV programs suitable for children in comparison to the available listening hours; also they objected to the numerous crime programs as bad influences on children; they observed that too many of the adult programs must be censored out for their children. Many stated that they noted a distinct lessening in their children's ability to entertain themselves and increasing dependence upon the television for amusement. They also noted, however, the value of the television in keeping the family together at home, and in bringing the greatest news events and entertainment into the family circle.

Sunday afternoon and evening were the favorite periods for regular viewing, by a wide margin. Followed in order by Wednesday evening, Monday evening, and Thursday evening. Hearing Aid Put To Unique TV Use

NEW YORK—Television repairmen have come up with a new weapon to use in eliminating "bugs" from your video screen—a hearing aid.

A precision instrument, the hearing aid is so sensitive it allows the repairman to "tune in" quickly on a wide range of vibration noises within faulty TV sets and thereby reduce valuable "trouble-shooting" time.

Noises include transformer hums and other extraneous sounds, the location of which is difficult to detect through the speaker alone. The technical definition of a hearing aid is "a specialized audio system that picks up, modifies and transmits sounds, then transmits them—greatly intensified—to the ear."

During the last ten years the size and weight of hearing aids have been reduced by more than one-third, while their general operating efficiency has been increased more than 300 per cent.

Despite numerous technological refinements in the instruments themselves, prices have increased less than 20 per cent since 1943. At any rate, when the TV man walks in with a hearing aid, you don't have to shout. He may be using the hearing aid only once you set-it if he uses it all the time, he can still hear you without your having to raise your voice.

Living Lightning Generated by Eels

WASHINGTON—Earth's creatures have varied weapons for survival but there is none stranger than the Electrophorus electricus, which generates living lightning—or electricity.

The electric eel can outshoot any battery of equal size. Its jolt is so powerful it can kill a horse or paralyze a fisherman. It has even lit up neon lights in aquarium demonstrations.

These fish of the Amazon and Orinoco rivers grow to eight feet long and as thick as a man's leg. Actually they are not eels at all, but are classed as gymnotids, related to carps and suckers. The rear four-fifths of their smooth scaly bodies are composed of electric generating cells.

Scientists know much about the anatomy of the electric eel, but have not learned how it produces electricity in living tissue.

A full-size fish can discharge up to 600 volts and almost 1,000 watts of power. A standard light bulb, by comparison, draws 60 watts from a 110-volt line.

And No Butter!

OTTAWA, Ill.—A La Salle truck driver, Joseph Affelt, cast his bread upon the railroad tracks—unvoluntarily.

Affelt was unhurt when the back of his laden bread truck was chopped off by an eastbound Rock Island train at an Ottawa grade crossing.

Bread and rolls lined the railroad for half a block after the accident.

Company Poll Discloses Views Of TV Watchers

MINNEAPOLIS—What's wrong with television? Too many wild West dramas, wrestling and quiz programs, for one thing. And, for another, television is killing the art of conversation.

These were the findings of a Northwestern life insurance company's poll of its white collar video set owners. While objecting to the types of programs listed above, these viewers expressed more favorable opinions of variety shows and dramas.

Of those polled, 49 per cent have children. These parents complained that there is a large shortage of TV programs suitable for children in comparison to the available listening hours; also they objected to the numerous crime programs as bad influences on children; they observed that too many of the adult programs must be censored out for their children. Many stated that they noted a distinct lessening in their children's ability to entertain themselves and increasing dependence upon the television for amusement. They also noted, however, the value of the television in keeping the family together at home, and in bringing the greatest news events and entertainment into the family circle.

Sunday afternoon and evening were the favorite periods for regular viewing, by a wide margin. Followed in order by Wednesday evening, Monday evening, and Thursday evening. Listening by the office workers for the most part, followed in order by Wednesday evening, Monday evening, and Thursday evening.

Old Coin Collection on Display at Bank

The finest collection of ancient coins in Alabama will be on display at the Elba Exchange Bank Thursday, July 1. This collection was presented to the people of the state by the Alabama Bankers Association. It was purchased from the estate of a private collector who spent thousands of dollars and most of his lifetime putting it together and it is now in the custody of the Alabama Museum of Natural History.

It has been valued at $30,000, exclusive of the gold which has a value of about $10,000. The rarest and most interesting of the coins have been brought here by the museum.

Many famous coins are on display in the display, including the shekels of Biblical times and the famous Spanish pieces of eight, which were so often used when they were sometimes cut into eight pieces like pie to make change. It was from this coin that the expression "row bits" and "four bits" are said to have originated.

Gold mined from Alabama is another feature of the exhibit. One of the most interesting features of the collection is the manner in which it is displayed. The coins are mounted under glass on brightly illustrated boards telling the history and romance of the pieces shown.

The exhibition will be open to the public all day Thursday. All who are interested are cordially invited by the bank to view the collection in their lobby. The bank will remain open throughout the afternoon, even though doors are customarily closed on Thursday afternoons.

Carlton Whitman of Montevallo College spent last weekend at home.

MORE FISH POND VANDALISM

Week before last several days were spent cleaning up the pool around the flowing well on the square. Monday, June 21, the job was completed and water run back in.

Since Clyde Snow of Fairview community had offered some of his goldfish to the county officials for the pool, Harold English, deputy clerk in the probate office, sent his two boys, Buddy and Malcolm, to Mr. Snow's farm last Monday. They obtained 33 fine goldfish to put in the pool. Some of them were the big, fantail variety and they added a good deal to appearances.

That very night somebody seized 20 of the 33 gold fish out of the pool.

This isn't the first instance of disregard for courthouse property as Ed Lee, custodian, and county officials will tell you. More often than they care to relate their vigilance paid off when three teenage youths were picked up just after they had broken a window in the men's rest room.

This trio should be taken before the juvenile court so the seriousness of their act will be impressed upon them as well as others who might have the inclination to destroy public property.

Longtime residents of Elba like T. B. Bryan tell you conditions have improved tremendously since he was a boy. At that time there was usually a killing, knifing or serious brawl to keep law enforcement officers busy. However, there is still an irresponsible minority around who have to be taught to respect public and private property.

The razing of the dam on M. C. McCollough's fish pond, sending of gold fish out of the pool on the square and pilfering of flowers from the cemetery are the latest incidents to point up this fact.

TOWN WITHOUT A VOICE

Another need for a Chamber of Commerce in Elba was pointed up last week when the railroad announced it was petitioning the Alabama Public Service Commission for permission to take off passenger train service between Elba and Dothan.

The ACL presented an impressive argument for their case by pointing out a gross passenger revenue of $292.72 for 1953 on their lines running between Dothan and Elba and Abbeville and Grimes. A net loss of $1,358.97 was claimed on the operation.

No business should be asked to continue an operation that no longer performs a service to the public and also loses money for the company. But is that all there is to it? Will freight passenger service be discontinued, what schedule will be followed by the freight trains?

There might be nothing to fear in the situation but it is one that could vitally affect Elba and its industrial potential. It also points up another need for a Chamber of Commerce here.

In most towns when the railroad proposes to restrict its services to that area, the Chamber appoints men to investigate immediate and long range effects of the change and decide whether or not the town will suffer by the action. They represent the town at the hearing called by the Public Service Commission.

As it is, Elba is the town without a voice. Major decisions affecting the well-being and future of the entire area are made without a spokesman from here being present. It is no single person's responsibility and no one takes it.

A good example of what happens was seen when the telephone company petitioned the Public Service Commission for a rate raise about two years ago. Members of the Lions Club got up at their meetings and vociferously condemned the telephone service here especially the long distance connections.

To accommodate anyone who wanted to testify, the commission held their hearings throughout the region served by United Telephone and Telegraph, who were petitioning for the rate raise. Meeting which Elbas were supposed to attend was held in place June 12 in the Ino Baptist church.

In most towns when the railroad proposes to restrict its services to that area, the Chamber appoints men to investigate immediate and long range effects of the change and decide whether or not the town will suffer by the action. They represent the town at the hearing called by the Public Service Commission.

As it is, Elba is the town without a voice. Major decisions affecting the well-being and future of the entire area are made without a spokesman from here being present. It is no single person's responsibility and no one takes it.

A good example of what happens was seen when the telephone company petitioned the Public Service Commission for a rate raise about two years ago. Members of the Lions Club got up at their meetings and vociferously condemned the telephone service here especially the long distance connections.

To accommodate anyone who wanted to testify, the commission held their hearings throughout the region served by United Telephone and Telegraph, who were petitioning for the rate raise. Meeting which Elbas were supposed to attend was held in place June 12 in the Ino Baptist church.

Week before last several days were spent cleaning up the pool around the flowing well on the square. Monday, June 21, the job was completed and water run back in.

Since Clyde Snow of Fairview community had offered some of his goldfish to the county officials for the pool, Harold English, deputy clerk in the probate office, sent his two boys, Buddy and Malcolm, to Mr. Snow's farm last Monday. They obtained 33 fine goldfish to put in the pool. Some of them were the big, fantail variety and they added a good deal to appearances.

That very night somebody seized 20 of the 33 gold fish out of the pool.

This isn't the first instance of disregard for courthouse property as Ed Lee, custodian, and county officials will tell you. More often than they care to relate their vigilance paid off when three teenage youths were picked up just after they had broken a window in the men's rest room.

This trio should be taken before the juvenile court so the seriousness of their act will be impressed upon them as well as others who might have the inclination to destroy public property.

Longtime residents of Elba like T. B. Bryan tell you conditions have improved tremendously since he was a boy. At that time there was usually a killing, knifing or serious brawl to keep law enforcement officers busy. However, there is still an irresponsible minority around who have to be taught to respect public and private property.

The razing of the dam on M. C. McCollough's fish pond, sending of gold fish out of the pool on the square and pilfering of flowers from the cemetery are the latest incidents to point up this fact.

TOWN WITHOUT A VOICE

Another need for a Chamber of Commerce in Elba was pointed up last week when the railroad announced it was petitioning the Alabama Public Service Commission for permission to take off passenger train service between Elba and Dothan.

The ACL presented an impressive argument for their case by pointing out a gross passenger revenue of $292.72 for 1953 on their lines running between Dothan and Elba and Abbeville and Grimes. A net loss of $1,358.97 was claimed on the operation.

No business should be asked to continue an operation that no longer performs a service to the public and also loses money for the company. But is that all there is to it? Will freight passenger service be discontinued, what schedule will be followed by the freight trains?

There might be nothing to fear in the situation but it is one that could vitally affect Elba and its industrial potential. It also points up another need for a Chamber of Commerce here.
